Get in touch: javirp@keystone.com.au British firms SNC-Lavalin and GKN win contracts to supply bulk EIFS for the new Queenshouth development in Christchurch, New Zealand for 504 windows and 112 door. GKN also supplies the clear glazing for the New Zealand International Convention Centre (NZICC), Auckland. From SNC-Lavalin, 504 windows were supplied to the City of Christchurch for its new Queenshouth Development project. The company's SNC Windows unit supplied the bulk of the windows to contractors through the International Group of Companies (IGC). GKN supplied the tempered glass and door options, while it was hired to provide all window locks, window mechanisms and exterior door hardware. "We are delighted to see the project coming to fruition after years of anticipation and planning and we want to congratulate all concerned on their work," said Mike Green, general manager, SNC Windows. SNC-Lavalin secured contracts to supply 1861 windows and 313 doors to the City of Christchurch's Queenshouth development, a mixed-use residential and commercial project in Christchurch, New Zealand. The City will use SNC-Lavalin's 'AK-66' aluminium-glass windows, which will be manufactured by Crown Aluminium. The windows will be installed on the west façade of the development's flagship tower, as well as the 830m2 office building, mews and warehouse spaces. The City has planned for the construction of a three-storey, 50m-long office building with an attached garage on the site, as well as a boutique hotel and retail unit. The windows, designed to reduce solar heat gain, will be manufactured at SNC's Auckland facility. "We are pleased to be involved in helping to bring new life to one of Christchurch's iconic landmarks," said Russell Sage, senior vice president, SNC Land, SNC-Lavalin. Queenstown site added. The Queenstown Central Business District (QCBD) is a modern 100,000 square metre (10,960,000 square feet), mixed-use retail, residential and office development, located at the heart of Queenstown. The new retail centre is expected to be built on the site of a large block of land adjoining the existing QT shop strip and the Kiwi Hotel precinct. The site will benefit from a 30 metre (98 feet) deep glacial aquifer that will run beneath the site. The
