Send your zen music to the internet or to your friends. Have fun with Radio Arcadie, it's free of charge!Q: Found N counts of UUID values in the code please can you tell me what's wrong with my code. I am trying to count the instances of UUID in my code. It keeps finding a lot of (UUID,1). What could be the issue? If I remove the records = [] and print typescount, it shows me a count of 26. import glob with open('test.txt','r') as f: lines = f.readlines() typescount = 0 records = [] for i in lines: try: timestamps = i.split() typesCount = typesCount + 1 record = (uuid.uuid4(), typesCount) records.append(record) typesCount = 0 except: print "Error: " + i A: That is because your code accesses the same line twice: for i in lines: timestamps = i.split() #... Instead, use enumerate: for i, line in enumerate(lines): timestamps = line.split() #... Another problem is that you are incrementing typesCount at the end of each iteration, so the value will
