"It's just really true," Jeff Flock, who is a commentator on the Fox News show "The Five," made the comment in a discussion about the number of abortions taking place in the U.S. Flock was asked to defend his statement by co-host Jesse Watters, who was questioning a statistic released by the Department of Health and Human Services that found that more than 55 million abortions took place in the U.S. between 1973 and 2015. Flock rejected the statistic, pointing out that the abortions were generally not considered legal abortions and cited other sources. "I say the 55 million dead babies is because it's the number I'm looking at," he said. "No one really knows this figure of 55 million. There's a number of sources saying this, but it's probably off by about 30 or 40 million." ADVERTISEMENT The comment elicited an audible groan from the audience, prompting a sarcastic remark from co-host Kimberly Guilfoyle, who suggested that Flock would call those who undergo abortions drug addicts. "So, you're saying abortion is addiction?" she asked, adding that Flock was "being very petulant and very closed-minded." "No,

Embedded Natural Products at Implant Surfaces: Their Role in Bone Regeneration. Many of the postoperative oral complications associated with dental implants are caused by infection at the implant interface due to microbial adhesion, which is facilitated by microstructural and chemical surface topography. Successful osseointegration and bone regeneration are affected by surface characteristics of the implant material, mechanical fixation (e.g., implant design, implant surface roughness), and host factors. A critical link between these features is the surface chemistry and the corresponding surface microstructural properties. Many inorganic materials in dental and medical implant devices are comprised of Ca and P-based compounds. The surfaces of these materials can be modified to influence osseointegration and bone regeneration by adding nanoscale features, such as nanoparticles, carbon, and polymer coatings. In this review, we describe the importance of surface microstructural and chemistry, and the resulting biological response, in relation to the design and function of dental implants. We love it, too! The book is centered around the last Sunday in August. That's when families decide to head out to their favorite beaches, eat, relax, unwind and have fun during the 4th of July holiday. Seacrest beach is a popular destination for visitors who choose to stay the week out. This is when Will's grandmother and great uncle, Lyman and Petunia, started a tradition of playing board games and hosting reunions for their many family members. From that, Teacitos celebrated the 4th of July every year and quickly grew with the holiday. Their staff of employees, volunteers and management have come to recognize that family is their most important customer. Their team is a key aspect that they celebrate. By Pam Rezac The owners of Teacitos in Dana Point look for employees that can be family. The reason is that one day that they look into hiring family, Teacitos is filled with smiles and laughter. And family is not just the parents and children, but also extended family, in-laws, children and grandchildren, and their spouses, or parents and siblings. They want family members to feel welcome and truly enjoy working in the company that is full of loyalty and friendship. It's not often that people are looking for family.
