Introducing Bartik: an easy way to build Windows applications - timf ===== bradleyland Looks cool. My first reaction was "what the hell is a Microsoft Research project", but after reading through a couple of the articles on MSDN: 1\ Bartik is designed as a prototype for IDE developers on Windows, specifically, for use in the VS2010/10.5/.Net environment. 2\ At a very high level, Bartik is a language-agnostic "static metaprogramming" framework, that enables you to "write programs as if programming language were irrelevant". 3\ It seems the .Net 4.0 Beta 2 runtime includes this as well. I have a couple of questions: 1\ Who is the target audience for Bartik? 2\ If its designed as a prototype for IDE developers, why is it built around Visual Studio? 3\ What exactly does it do that "CodeDOM doesn't provide?" 4\ It will be interesting to see the maturity level of existing CodeDom projects. If I have to "build my application from scratch" as opposed to "use xyz.CodeDomainProject to do so...", I'll have to learn a new framework to do so. Just wondering what the maturity level of such projects is, and whether this framework will be of any use to them. I'm interested in the problem space, but I'm not interested in new development languages. I'll leave it to the academics... I've spent enough time in academia! ----- timf Looks like the commercial software vendor hosting this site might have a (welcome) open beta

This is one of the highest ranked competitions where young and old sugar artists compete for prizes. "It's an art competition where the best of the best sugar artists compete. There are ages from 12 to 60. I want to prove I can do it. I am the youngest, so I want to prove I can get a medal. I am using a lot of red color sugar for some kind of painting, but I don't know what exactly. I just have to show them what I can do." v a l u e o f (2 3 + 4 7) * (- 4 9 4) / (- 1 0 4) ? 2 3 0 C a l c u l a t e 6 2 + - 6 0 + ((- 3) / (- 9)) / (- 1) * - 1 2 . 1 4 W h a t i s (- 1 1) / (2 + 3 0 / ((- 5 - - 3)) + (- 6 - - 2)) ? - 3 9 W h a t i s t h e v a l u e o f (- 1 8 - - 1) + 1 6 + ((- 7 0) / (- 1
