A drawing usually contains one or more entities that represent the design elements to be rendered in the drawing. A drawing is a digital rendering of a model that has been designed using a CAD program. The drawing is the translation of the model into pixels. The object definition consists of a datum definition, an initial datum, and a reference coordinate system. The datum definition identifies the scale of the drawing and the orientation of the coordinate system. An object with a scale of 1 is a 1:1 drawing. An object with a scale of 1:10 is a 1:10 drawing. An object with a scale of 1:10:1 is a 1:10:1 drawing. The initial datum defines the center point of the drawing, and the reference coordinate system is a reference frame that defines the coordinates used
