1) I love the thought of being able to strip so much off my writtens but I have never used one. Not sure I want to go there. I have been thinking of using a light weight hoodie and a pair of light weight pants. 2) I also love the thought of being able to take in my clothes as I do now when I do laundry. As I mentioned before I am between sizes and while these are somewhat expensive I don't think I will be able to get them all. Looking at the prices I think this is the best bang for your buck. Any thoughts? Love the thought of the slightly rufflier material and the zipper front! I usually wear a size 10 in hoodies and leggings and they are always taken in in the back, and have no problem with them sitting low on me. I'd love to try something that would fit me better, but I haven't found a company that makes those sizes, except for the one that made the fabric you posted about. And to be honest, $135 for leggings that fit me is the best part of that, because they are SO INEXPENSIVE otherwise! I am in between sizes as well and I have pretty wide hips. I also noticed the girls at my local store are mostly the same size. Some online? Not many of them, but a few. I am very attracted to the idea of the zip front and hoodie. I use a size 8 sometimes to cover up and sometimes in the colder months I wear a size 6. But it's good to think about buying them bigger just to be sure. As far as being able to take them in as I wash, do you use a dryer. That's how I do it and as for a company that makes them, I haven't found anything in my size. I am only able to find them online and for pretty high prices. $180 for a pair of pants is just way to much for me. We have our online store to order from if you'd like. I am not a petite person, and a size 10 or 8 also is about a size that fits me. Mostly, you want to find the right cut and style that are flattering for you, but can take a little shaping/tailoring and work. I'd say you could do a little research on other
