My code for this so far: for item in link_text: doc = parse(url + str(item) + ".html") elem = doc.xpath("//div[contains(@class, 'align ')]") print elem[0].text But when I run this code I'm getting an error. The return value of elem[0] is NULL. However, I can use the domparser in python to easily find the div and I get a ValueError: list index out of range exception. What am I missing? A: If you just want to see if such element exists - try: if 'align=justify' in doc.xpath('//div[contains(@class, "align ")']): print 'OK' If you want to do something with this element - add some locator like: name = doc.xpath('//div[contains(@class, "align ")]/@name')[0] if name!= None: print name Ps. in your code: # here doc = parse(url + str(item) + ".html") elem = doc.xpath("//div[contains(@class, 'align ')]") print elem[0].text you try to do two things: Find div by @class named align. Get text from this div Bowery /Blank Block __NOTOC__
