Deja Vu (FIFA's Depth of Vision) system - By stretching the field into multiple depths, the game will intelligently orient the camera depending on the positioning of the players. For example, if you create a ball with a defender running towards it, the game will adjust the field of view accordingly. Dynamic Player Trajectory – Every player in the game moves in three dimensions. The game engine will move the player on a dynamic trajectory to create a more realistic character. Relative Player Movement – Player movement is based on the position and distance of the player relative to his teammate or to the ball – not on the absolute values, which is more action-oriented. This means that, even if a player is far away from his teammate or the ball, the animation will be fluid and as realistic as possible. Player Motion Clips - On-screen actions are more realistic, thanks to more realistic movement
