This year's edition of the highly popular football simulation video game features 90 licensed teams and more than 1,200 licensed players, including several real-world superstars. The game has been re-worked using various new gameplay features, with 'HyperMotion Technology' being the most prominent. "The overall feeling of the game has changed," admitted Gustavo Zidow, producer of FIFA 22. "The game is much more dynamic and intense than ever before. The player movement is more natural and intuitive." 22 international and over 1,200 licensed players have been used to create the most realistic player performance and animations in the series. Zidow also added, "The number of licensed players is the biggest we've seen in a FIFA game." Players will be able to compete from over 90 licensed teams this year. The new teams includes the Argentina national team and the Iceland national team, who became the first undefeated FIFA world champions. Four new stadiums have also been added: Maracanã Stadium in Rio de Janeiro, Estadio Municipal de Itagui in Brazil, Allianz Arena in Munich, Germany and St. James Park in Newcastle, England. In addition, the player can also experience a new "Fan-Made Stadium," which will allow players to create their own stadium with the aim of becoming a FIFA World Champions, which can be shared with their friends. As the game's lead producer, Zidow is particularly proud of the game's 'Visual Update,' where he said, "We've made special attention to graphics. In this edition, you will feel that there is no top-down camera, and the game is in 3D. Furthermore, we've really focused on the game's overall aesthetic." Moreover, on this year's PlayStation®4 Pro, a significant change has been made for FIFA 20, whereby players will be able to play on the PS4 Pro using dynamic 4K ultra HD. This will enable the PS4 Pro to deliver games at a higher resolution and better visual effects than ever before. For the first time, the FIFA series will feature the 'Over-the-Top Game Engine,' which offers a dynamic playing experience based on the most detailed representation of the 3D world. Players will finally be able to feel
