Getamped 2 Hack Crescent

Hello, I created some kind of function based on your previous post: ``function getReceivedMessage(instMessage) { alert("message: " + instMessage); }`` The problem: If I click on a link in an email or through a facebook message, the page is redirected to the page requested, but the `getReceivedMessage` function doesn't get called, it doesn't trigger. Any ideas? Thanks a lot! P.S. I use the following on the page I want to redirect test Thanks! A: Why not use an anchor tag instead of an a tag? Since javascript: usually only works on links. Example test Update function `getReceivedMessage() { alert('message'); }` That should work. Update I was going to say that if you have an href of `javascript:getReceivedMessage();`, then the a would never work and go straight to the javascript. I think that the easiest way to do this would be to use `onclick=""` to trigger the function `function getReceivedMessage(){ alert('message'); }` test Update Here's a little example I threw together. HTML message me google JS `$( 'a' ).click(function(){ alert('message clicked'); });` --D--[AW-3-27-2012] --D--[AW-3-29-2012] --D--[AW-3-29-2012] --D--[AW-3-30-2012] --D--[AW-4-4-2012] --D--[AW-
