In a post on Facebook and in a telephone interview, Gates said he would remain at the foundation and continue to serve as chairman of the board of directors. In that role, he can continue to hold discussions with other members of the board of directors and the leadership of the foundation. During a joint interview with Buffett on CNBC on Monday, Gates said the timing was right to transition the chairmanship. Buffett said he "will have a lot of fun at doing it." "It was a perfect match.
