Set calc = ThisWorkbook.Names.Add("calc") End Function My problem is that the 'Name' property of the Excel object does not set to the text 'calc' because I need to pass several arguments in the function name and I do not want to extract the three arguments using string concatenation. On a client side, the code would be something like this: Function Calculate(p1, p2, p3) As Variant Calculate = Application.UserForms("form1").calc(p1, p2, p3) End Function How can I force the Excel object to set its own name property using the arguments p1, p2, p3 or how to I force VBA to extract the arguments using string concatenation? Ray Gigant is an indie game that's entering closed beta. It's a massive puzzle game where you have to survive with basic weapons and skills to defeat waves of digital creatures. The worlds in the game are created using procedurally generated maps that expand, grow, become more complex and puzzle-structured. The game will be released in the coming months with monthly content updates Game "Bureau of War" Gameplay: For the last 15 years, Raven Software has been producing extremely polished RPGs. The studio also is known for its works in the zombie genre, and the PC open-world survival game, DayZ. No one knows the true size of the zombie apocalypse, but a few scientists are willing to gamble everything to find out. Oblivion has quickly become one of the most popular RPGs among AAA developers. It released in 2013 and sold millions of copies, it's easy to see why. Its story and world were extremely complex and fun to play. Tanks and military planes are the ultimate way to fight a zombie apocalypse, but not if you're a survivor. You'll have to develop more creative ways to battle a horde of the undead. The Broken Sword series gets this for most of its plots. So does Arcanum. The Legend of Heroes: Trails in the Sky is not only a great simulation RPG game, but also a great action RPG game. The battle system allows for a more grounded kind of combat. For example, there's an option to lock on to multiple targets at once. But that doesn't mean the action will be easy. Enemies can and will have many different means of attack. Aeternity is the spiritual successor to Destiny and is a spiritual successor to the X-Box game, God of War. It is also one of the best-looking games in the genre with clever use of detail in the world and enemies. As the name implies, Plants vs. Zombies 2 is a sequel. It's an extremely well-rounded game that is the kind that won't get old for a long time. With so many playable characters, this is the perfect game to pass hours on end. Call of Duty: Advanced Warfare is one of the most graphically intense games in the series. Though it won't look so good to everyone. The most interesting feature of this mobile game is the multiplayer aspect. The combat is unlike any mobile game. Fans

, & Mini Pk16 AEG I already have the main AEG, it is a Bushmaster 1100mm how can I make this 37 gear Euro gun? Will this gun be without Picatinny rail, I know on the A-gun I attached the picatinny rail because it is A-gun not a MP907? But I have a problem on finding picatinny attachment for this 37 gear MP. Also on asking my friend on how to attach the rail he said it will scratch because this is meant to be an old gun. So what is the best safe way of attaching the rail? Of course I'm needing to make a secondary rail if you don't want to make a picatinny rail. You do not need to make a secondary rail if you just attach it onto the stock/stock cover. You can use a rubber or silicon dental impression impression gel on the back of the stock which might attach well to the aluminum of the stock cover. This is an easy free method to make a picatinny rail; just attach the three small rubber or silicon tubes to the MP077. Note: You must use silicon, rubber, or any material that is flexible enough (such as shoelaces), but also flexible enough to not wear out by being flexed constantly. Laser light points, paint, and anything of a sharp type will definitely cut or break the thin material. The stock thing is same as the A-Gun stock, with a picatinny at the end of the unit. Please note that you won't be able to use the ACK twist lock system on this gun, since it is 37-gear. You can though use the 5 position modular rail (aka modular rail) instead. The ACK twist lock is better with ACK, but if you got Glock weapons, you can use yours on their rail. You do not need to make a secondary rail if you just attach it onto the stock/stock cover. Perfectly playable for all ages! Isolate and slip into a mind-blowing world where logic and creativity collide, delivering surreal experiences as profound as they are amazing! Rules: - You don't remember where you come from. Don't worry, I don't blame you for it either. - You're an alien. An alien, by the way! - You have only one life left. - The memories are yours, but the content? Totally alien. A drama-filled mystery awaits you, full of creepy moments, dangerous situations, and mind-blowing puzzles! Go and unravel the story of your life! "But are you sure that you want this???" It all started when you had just one life left. "No way. I'm not giving it back. I want the memories of my life, I deserve them." The only thing you could remember, though, were the emotions, the right emotions... "I don't know... I want to enjoy my memories of life, before it's too late." Well, you are all-right choices, aren't you? "What if I am making a mistake? Maybe I should go back to my world... I don't want to become a strange alien with false memories of my life..." "Okay, OK, OK..." Don't question me. Keep walking. "Who are you? Where do you come from? Am I an alien? That can't be!" You are an alien. You should realize it by now. "It's impossible... This is too bizarre..." "Weird, weird..." (In the gap) Oh, no, no, no... "Is this... MY world? No way!" I don't know what to call this... "Did you tell me to jump? Why did you tell me that?" "I don't remember telling you that, but why are you... what are you doing?" Your life is over. "No, no, no..." You are in a tall building. What am I doing here? "I'm not supposed to be here. I need to
