Porcuball.Slideshow (2 images) MOSCOW (Reuters) - Russia's President Vladimir Putin has ordered a military review in response to claims a U.S. fighter plane flying near Moscow had dropped a bomb in a "sabotage act", the Kremlin said on Wednesday. The Russian military dismissed the accusations from the United States on Tuesday of an "unprofessional" Russian plane flying into U.S. air space near T-34 training range on the Sea of Japan and "dropping ordnance", without providing further details. Putin's office said the war games, a tradition since the end of the Cold War, were being held in Russia's remote Far Eastern Primorskiy region, on the Pacific coast east of Alaska. "Putin has ordered a new military review into this matter," Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said in Multiple sclerosis (MS) is a highly disabling chronic disease with a prevalence rate of approximately 40 per 100,000. The study of emotions in MS patients is particularly important because of the psychological impact of the disease and its treatment. A group of 23 women with MS and 23 female healthy controls were studied to assess differences in the emotional state of MS patients. All subjects were submitted to the following tests: Montreal Cognitive Assessment (MoCA), Beck Depression Inventory (BDI), Beck Anxiety Inventory (BAI), and Short Form 36 Health Survey (SF-36). A paired sample t test was used to compare means for the two groups. No significant differences were found in MoCA, BDI, BAI, or SF-36 test scores between groups. Most subjects with
