Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a resin composition for a power transmission cable, a power transmission cable and a manufacturing method thereof. 2. Description of the Related Art A power transmission cable is used in vehicles, ships, airplanes, and the like, and since it is used under severe conditions, there have been demands for improvement in tensile strength and bend resistance of the cable. Further, it is also demanded that the cable can be easily and reliably finished without causing corrosion, cutting, crimping and the like to a terminal, and that the terminal is highly reliable. As for a method for improving tensile strength and bend resistance of a resin used as a cable main body, there are methods, for example, by increasing the density of the filling material, and methods by adding a filler having a high strength and bendability to the base resin. Further, a cord jacket usually contains a large number of cables. These cables are mechanically united into a single body by being interwoven with a braid or the like. There are methods in which, for improving the interlaminar adhesion between a braid and the jacket, the jacket and the braid are bonded with an adhesive. However, when an adhesive is used e79caf774b
