It has been found that ATU32/Bcl2L1 and Mcl1 are associated with the initiation of apoptosis induced by oxidative stress \[@pone.0144016.ref028)], and the expression of Bcl2L1 and Mcl1 has been shown to be involved in the development of osteoarthritis \[@pone.0144016.ref029)]. Our data showed that exposure to PM~2.5~ induced the expression of Bcl2L1, ATU32, and Mcl1 in a dose- and time-dependent manner, and induced the release of LDH from primary chondrocytes, suggesting that PM~2.5~ could trigger apoptosis of chondrocytes. This is consistent with the findings that chronic exposure to PM~2.5~ induced the expression of apoptosis-promoting proteins in pulmonary fibroblasts \[@pone.0144016.ref006)] and chondrocytes \[@pone.0144016.ref030)]. Because oxidative stress could induce apoptosis of chondrocytes \[@pone.0144016.ref031)], and the expression of Bcl2 family proteins in chondrocytes is related to oxidative stress \[@pone.0144016.ref032)], it is likely that the expression of Bcl2 family proteins is induced by oxidative stress in chondrocytes exposed to PM~2.5~. Nevertheless, further research is needed to elucidate the relationship between oxidative stress and apoptosis and the mechanisms by which PM~2.5~ induces apoptosis of chondrocytes. We also found that exposure to PM~2.5~ reduced the proliferation of chondrocytes by blocking the G1/S phase of the cell cycle and increasing the percentage of cells in the G2/M phase. This is consistent with previous findings that exposure to PM~2.5~ inhibited the proliferation of pulmonary fibrobl
