Download Samsung SmartPCFixer and apply the crack.The present invention relates to a process for manufacturing polymer compositions containing grafted thereto one or more polyamines, polyamines which are of low molecular weight, and/or nonionic polymers. It is known that the effects of ionic groups, when incorporated in polymers, deteriorate the adhesion of the polymers to substrates. The presence of a polyamine or polyamines, which are substantially non-ionic, in the polymer compositions is necessary to obtain adhesion of the polymers to substrates. In the past, it has been suggested to graft to a polymer, for example, polyolefins such as polypropylene, polyester, and polyamide, one or more polyamines of low molecular weight in order to improve the adhesion to substrates. For example, Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 110,325/81 (published May 24, 1981) suggests grafting a polyamine and a polyamine mixture to a polyolefin in order to improve the adhesion of polyolefins to substrates. The technique of the above application has drawbacks, however, because the compatibility of the graft component (polyamine) with the graft polymer component (polyolefin) is
