The 2017/2018 UEFA Champions League now features loads of challenges you can take on. Play a pick-up match in front of the current favorite like Barcelona or Juventus, and compare your statistics with the real-life teams. Or find out who is the best and most effective passer in Europe using the new Passing Control feature. You can keep track of all your favorite players using a new ID option in the VAR system. The system shows player ID as a static symbol on the pitch and shows a caption with the player's position. The new ID system also provides information about referees and VAR access inside the game. Tactical changes aim to make the game more entertaining for fans, and to improve and adjust the game's pace. They include new control schemes, the passing and crossing feature, a Backheel Control system that allows players to create controlled passes behind their opponent and moving backwards, as well as the new dynamic “pressure” system that brings different defenders to the ball when a player loses possession. Last but not least, the game's Fitness Trainer brings improved muscle maps to ensure players are more defined and agile. FIFA 22 also includes an all-new career mode, which presents a world of fresh gameplay in which players can completely customize their game. Players can now construct their own team from across the globe or from the clubs of their favorite teams, using a variety of customizable settings. Players can even choose their favorite manager and create their dream team. The new manager system in career mode gives players many more possibilities to build their team and make it competitive. FIFA 22 also introduces Clubs vs. Club mode, a competitive mode that pits the biggest clubs from all over the world against each other in all the games of the traditional season. Clubs vs Club mode sees players selecting from one of 12 clubs and earning trophies with each club throughout the season. Players will have the opportunity to score goals, create chances, and win matches. Each club features a unique gameplay style, such as Liverpool's pass-and-move game, or Chelsea's counter-attacking game. Clubs
