Roblox is an online game platform and game creation system developed by Roblox Corporation that allows users to program games and play games created by other users. Created by David Baszucki and Erik Cassel in 2004 and released in 2006, the platform hosts user-created games of multiple genres coded in the programming language Lua. For most of Roblox's history, it was relatively small, both as a platform and a company. Roblox began to grow rapidly in the second half of the 2010s, and this growth has been accelerated by the COVID-19 pandemic. The 2018 Grand Prix was the second event of the Grand Prix series, and took place in Paris, France from 25 July to 1 August 2018. The eight-day event began with six teams from Europe, five from North America, and one from Oceania. The final team was chosen by a prize ceremony on 1 August, and was composed of four American, three European, one Australian, and one South African (Cape Verde) player. The 2018 Grand Prix included 12 days of regular play, with three days of playoffs in the seven-player, semi-final groups. Each team played each other once in Round Robin Group Play. The European and North American teams advanced to playoffs, while the South African team was eliminated after the regular season. The World Championship was a global competition featuring six teams from around the world. It was the most prestigious event in the Roblox esports calendar, and the winner received a $100,000 USD cash prize. The event was held on 1–7 June 2018, with the first three days held as regular competition, and the last three days were playoffs. All teams qualified for the World Championship by winning regional or world championship events. The Grand Prix featured the top eight-players on the season ladder who were not already on the team
