Sialic acid (neuraminic acid) content in gastric juice and blood plasma was measured quantitatively in 70 normal subjects and 100 patients with gastric carcinoma. The levels of sialic acid in gastric juice from patients with intestinal type carcinomas were higher than from those of patients with diffuse type carcinomas. Sialic acid levels in plasma were remarkably increased in patients with gastric carcinoma as compared to the normal controls. The level of sialic acid in cancer patients was correlated with the clinical stage of the disease, but not related to the histological type, cancer location, or other laboratory and clinical findings. The relationship of the transition zone to the presence of pelvic organ prolapse. Anatomic and functional changes to support structures such as connective tissue, the vagina and levator ani muscle may be important in defining the ideal support for the pelvic organs. In this study we sought to define the relationship of the pelvic transition zone to levator and support tissue.

A total of 59 women were prospectively evaluated by cystoscopy to define the anterior extent of their transition zone. The lower edge of the transition zone was defined by the level at which the rectum was first visualized or, in cases of vaginal agenesis, visualized directly by the anterior cervical os. The extent of the transition zone was recorded both as a linear distance and in centimeters. The anterior extent of the transition zone, given in linear units, was statistically greater than the anteroposterior distance (mean, 107 mm vs 62 mm;  $p$  less than 0.01). There was also a statistically significant correlation between the linear distance of the transition zone and the length of the vagina ( $r = 0.42$ ,  $p$  less than 0.001).

Leogroovmilra.ddns.net.Cycling is booming in England. See gallery for some of the sights. A blog published on the UK Cycling Forum website shows photographs of British cyclists around the world. Among the points of interest are the iconic Tour de France in Paris, The Great North Road Cycling Tour in Northern England, the annual Grand Prix des Nations in Le Mans, France, and a group ride to the London Olympic cycling team's training camp in Oxfordshire. The photos were all taken by the blogger, who goes by the pseudonym South. He tells CNET News.com that he's been cycling for about 10 years. "I'm very interested in photography and live cycling from various events and have used my camera along the way," he says. "But a friend pointed out a website called UKCF.org and I was very surprised at the range of images of British cyclists and cyclists on other continents." While the group ride in Oxfordshire was part of a long weekend training camp by the London cycling team, South notes that "there is a huge crossover between the club and social scenes in London and the culture in other countries, or even the sport itself."
