White*, 496 U.S. 325, 330, 110 S. Ct. 2412, 2416, 110 L. Ed. 2d 301, 308 (1990). The State notes that the informant's tip did not come from a named informant. But while the informant was not a named informant, the record does not indicate that she was otherwise unknown to the police or that the informant never had provided tips in the past. The informant appeared to have ties to the community. She knew of Forte's prior purchase of crack and of the currency because she was present at the restaurant when Forte was purchasing the crack and saw the money Forte used to pay the order. She also indicated that she knew Forte to be a street-level crack dealer. As the district court noted, a named informant who knew Forte by name and had indicated personal knowledge about his business as a crack dealer would have been "a particularly credible source." State v. Morgan, 268 Neb. 226, 229, 681 N.W.2d 751, 754 (2004). See also State v. Abejide, 293 Neb. 260, 875 N.W.2d 670 (2016) (informant with prior history of providing information to law enforcement, who also knew defendant by name and provided detailed description of defendant's alleged drug trafficking activities, was sufficiently reliable to justify investigatory stop). We therefore conclude that, based on the totality of the circumstances, the information provided by the informant and the subsequent observations of the officers, both through their own eyes and through the windows of the vehicle, established reasonable
