platform: I have always maintained that web is the future. If you want to make money online, your dream should not be about making money, but about making the web the channel for your unique, valuable and valuable personal skills to reach your dream clients. If you read my articles or otherwise interacted with me online, you will know that I spend most of my time online - this is because I strongly believe in the power of online-based collaboration to change the world! In the last couple of years, I have been exploring where online collaboration between people is headed. I am convinced that we will see the end of the customer/supplier, employer/employee paradigm. Each one of us is a member of a community - a micro-community to be precise - and each is capable of contributing to a wider community. For me, online collaboration is about helping people to create their own micro-communities. It is about helping people create their own networks, that is, powerful social structures that can reach thousands of people. The goal of my next post will be to take you through the thought-process and explain why I am so passionate about this concept. 2 Comments you need to
