Telerik UI For ASP.NET AJAX R3 2019 SP1 (version 2019.3.1023) Retail

Telerik feels that the vulnerability that exists in the previous version of the Telerik UI for ASP.NET AJAX 2017 is not a security issue and we are not accepting any liability for our customers' exposure to this issue. We recommend that you upgrade your application to the latest version of the Telerik UI for ASP.NET AJAX 2019 Visual Studio Extensions: Installing the Telerik UI for ASP.NET AJAX 2019 SP1 Visual Studio Extensions Configuring the Telerik UI for ASP.NET AJAX 2019 SP1 components in your project The updated Telerik UI for ASP.NET AJAX documentation provides step-by-step instructions on how to obtain the latest version of the software and how to secure your application. The updated documentation also contains general instructions on how to update or manage your Telerik UI ASP.NET AJAX Add-ons. Of course, this is a security issue and even if you did not install the Telerik UI for ASP.NET AJAX 2019 SP1 Visual Studio Extensions, your application may be exposed to this vulnerability. Telerik has performed a security review of our UI for ASP.NET AJAX components and determined that to address this issue in Telerik UI for ASP.NET AJAX, it is essential that we provide a means of restricting the ability to execute JavaScript code remotely. To mitigate this issue, Telerik has implemented a security feature, known as “Hostile Code Execution Prevention”, which allows developers to disable JavaScript execution in specific situations. Developers can enable the Hostile Code Execution Prevention setting in the Telerik UI for ASP.NET AJAX UI Skins and then define a rule that will indicate whether JavaScript can be executed in a specific location. 5ec8ef588b
