It is well known that bicycles and other similar pedal-driven devices often become contaminated with hair or other matter which sticks to the various drive-transmitting components. In particular, the pedals of a bicycle are very often subjected to contamination from the legs of an operator, which become entangled in the drive-transmitting components. One significant problem with bicycle components is that if they are not properly cleaned of such extraneous matter, it is generally quite difficult to remove. 5ec8ef588b
