Presentations from PowerPoint 2010 are not much different from their PowerPoint 2003 counterparts, so it does not take long to start importing presentations into the Digital Publishing Suite. One drawback though, is that your PowerPoint presentations are not protected with the Adobe Digital Rights Management. Another problem is that it does not support.pptx and.pptxx format files. DPS Export for PowerPoint is a useful and practical add-in that can come in handy whenever you need to work with DPS folios rather than PPT slideshows, as it can convert them with minimal effort entailed. This topic was the main theme at the Symposium 'A New and Beautiful Life' organized by the International Union of Architects on December 5, 2017 in Ljubljana. The word "Ljubljana" is of Slavic origin and is derived from the two words "ljubo" meaning "dear" and "brdo" meaning "riverbank". The old town was located in a narrow isthmus between the Ljubljanica River and the marshy riverbank. The isthmus was easily defended against approaching enemies and eventually a city was built on the higher bank of the marshy riverbank. As the strategic importance of the city increased, the city expanded and its Roman walls were built around the time of Emperor Diocletian, in 301 AD. In the Middle Ages, the city was at the crossroads of important trade routes. As a result, the city was expanded. At the end of the 14th century, Ljubljana was enclosed by the present outer walls. The title of the symposium could be translated as "The Beauty of the World Today" as it focused on the preservation of the present and the past. A selection of writers, historians, architects, politicians and artists participated in the symposium. The topics discussed included the collective memory, institutional memory and the preservation of buildings, which all have to be considered in the context of current architectural history. There were four presentations about the preservation of the present, which was followed by four presentations about the preservation of the past. The presentations about the preservation of the present were presented by: - Mr. Ivan Vidmar from the Institute of Applied Archaeology, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia, who was the first speaker in the symposium - Mr. Jože Strnad from the
