Smart Objects are a convenient way to create artwork, collages, etc. Links to the Smart Object only works on Mac operating systems. With the new update to the advanced features in the version and comes a new version of Photoshop Movie, a tool for aspiring movie editors. You can now make low-frame-rate (2-15 frames per second) or 24p 4K (4,096 by 2,160) video files, or even sequence up to 30 still images. The new face recognition functionality, available in both Lightroom CC and Photoshop CC, is really quite useful and it is available right from the camera, if you have the camcorder app installed. You just identify yourself, then the app automatically launches with your settings, including your face if you're looking into the camera. Using face recognition allows you to start shooting right from the camera. This makes it easier to capture images unexpectedly when there is no one to help you. To prove its strength, I took some shots with Photoshop CC and the app, and I was blown away by how well the features worked. Even with my poor eyesight, I was able to capture a shot of a face that had some difficulty making out what was being photographed.
