Yesterday I had the pleasure of having the pleasure of meeting your very own Jack Bauer. He is the Arizona division president, Anthony Lazzara. He is a year or two younger than me, but his energy and enthusiasm inspired my own. As we talked, he instantly transformed me from a mildly interested spectator to an idealistic participant. What is Project Milagro? Project Milagro is an initiative of the Arizona Department of Economic Security (ADES). It is the Arizona Statewide Survey of Children in Foster Care. This survey gives us an accurate picture of all children in Arizona who have experienced the difficult process of foster care. Based on your question, I will assume that you are referring to the last line of the paragraph where it says, "This will include discussing all options with the child." I will explain the different options available and discuss what should be considered. There are three options available at this time. You can decide to keep the child with you, continue foster care, or have the child adopted. These options do not go into a child's past or their family history, nor are they a judging of the child's worth. When should I think about adoption? The ideal time to consider adoption is when the child is in the fourth or fifth grade. At this time, the child is experiencing school and an independent sense of self. The change from foster care to adoption must be done carefully so that the transition is smooth. There is a full year between the time that your agency determines that you will be able to keep the child and the time that you decide to adopt the child. The wait for a placement is approximately six months. The longer you hold on to the child, the longer the child will be out of the family environment and you will be working with a child who is not only an extension of the family, but will be an important part of the child's life for years to come. There is no need to rush a decision to adopt. You do not have to wait until you have talked to
